

Statement on
First Amendment Rights and Responsibilities

Student Organizations on college campuses are essential to the development of the student and campus culture. We are committed to a freedom of association and freedom of expression for student organizations. All students are encouraged to associate freely with other students in the (pursuit of the) creation of new student organizations, and members of student organizations have the freedom to express their views.

We encourage the responsible use of these powerful rights. We also encourage students to engage with folks who have differing views, as all students are engaged in the pursuit of knowledge.

Finally, all student organizations are subject to registration requirements to maintain active status. All student organizations must uphold the Student Code and the policies and procedures described in Blueprints, the student organization manual.
